Category:Computer-aided design software for Windows without his interpreter, he was working on his farm all day, and therefore was not then available to testify. Moreover, the claim of prejudice is unavailing. The record shows that when the state trial court appointed an interpreter to assist the defendant during the trial, the court made arrangements for the interpreter to be present throughout the day. At the end of the day the interpreter accompanied the defendant to court, where the state trial judge instructed the defendant that he was to have the interpreter present during his testimony on the following day. Thus the interpreter was on hand for the entire trial, and was present with the defendant throughout the day of his testimony. Given these circumstances, we conclude that the court did not err in finding that the interpreter was available to the defendant during the morning of his testimony. 3 That section provided that: Whoever sells, gives, or otherwise disposes of a firearm to any person knowing or having reason to believe that such person is a convicted felon, or any person under indictment for a crime punishable by imprisonment for a term exceeding one year, or any person who is a fugitive from justice, is guilty of a crime. The fact of such prior conviction or indictment may be shown with evidence of the highest degree of certitude, but no conviction or indictment shall be received in evidence or otherwise be used against any person for any purpose unless such person has been afforded an opportunity to have a jury trial. 18 U.S.C. § 922(n) (1976). Under section 922(n), sales or other dispositions of firearms by a convicted felon or fugitive were illegal. 4 21 U.S.C. § 922(g)(1) provides: (g) It shall be unlawful for any person (1) who has been convicted in any court of, a crime punishable by imprisonment for a term exceeding one year; ... to ship or transport in interstate or foreign commerce, or possess in or affecting commerce, any firearm or ammunition; or to receive any firearm or ammunition which has been shipped or transported in interstate or foreign commerce. 21 U.S.C. § 922(g)(1). 5 The supplemental charge to the jury stated that the trial judge in his earlier instruction had "explained that there were some questions or matters which were not explained in the earlier instructions." The record shows that the charge was given over the 2d92ce491b
