. Metal Slug PC Collection is a compilation of all previous Metal Slug games released by Irem.a. Field of the Invention This invention relates to devices for holding toothbrushes and like articles, and particularly to toothbrush holders mounted within and within accessible reach of a toilet bowl. b. Problems in the Art Problems associated with toothbrush holders have always been recognized and various solutions have been proposed. For example, it has been recognized for a number of years that toothbrushes may be removed from a holder and used in the toilet bowl. However, there are various problems associated with this technique. For example, toothbrushes are usually used and stored in a way in which the brush heads are outwardly projecting from the mouth end of the handle. Accordingly, when such a toothbrush is inserted into a toilet bowl, the free end of the brush head that remains outside of the toilet bowl encounters the air contained within the toilet bowl, and the air tends to dry the hairs of the brush head. In addition, the removal of the toothbrush from the holder creates splashing, sloshing, and other problems. Prior art solutions include various holders located on the lid or within the toilet bowl. One such holder is shown in U.S. Pat. No. 3,828,738, in which a holder for a toothbrush is inserted into the toilet bowl and secured by means of a flange. The holders described in U.S. Pat. No. 3,828,738 comprise a mounting bracket and a clamping bracket that grips the sidewall of the toilet bowl. Unfortunately, these holders do not function effectively without some modification of the toilet bowl. In addition, holders have been proposed that can be used with or without modification of the toilet bowl. For example, in U.S. Pat. No. 4,858,892, a flanged toothbrush holder is described that is mounted on the back wall of a toilet bowl. The entire back wall is removed and discarded. Other holders include integrally molded upstanding brush holders that are mounted beneath the inner rim or beneath the rim of the toilet bowl. See, e.g., U.S. Pat. Nos. 4,059,836, 4,725,144, 4,881,372, 4,934,096 and 5,082,095. While these prior art toothbrush holders have functioned generally well, they are of complex structure and

Overview. -Page1.metalx.jpg.Q: How to aggregate for 1+ years at the same time I have a column in my table that contains a time stamp for when the review process began. Because the data set is large, each row will represent the whole length of time that a review was processed. The dataset looks like this: Year Duration(days) 2007 3 2007 15 2007 39 2008 10 2008 20 2008 40 ... 2012 3 I'm trying to create a new column in this dataset that would aggregate data over the past 10 years. So, for example, if someone started reviewing in 2007 and not finished in 2012, then the new column would show the total time spent across the 10 year period. I'm thinking that I need to do a cumulative sum of the duration column as I can see no other viable way of aggregating this information. A: Try: select sum(duration) over(order by year(startdate)) new_col from df You get the wanted result: Year new_col 2009 46 2010 39 2011 40 2012 30 2013 20 See SQL Fiddle (Note that 2008 doesn't seem to be in the database.) 3da54e8ca3
